Made from quality polar fleece. Each Q magnet has it's own flux plate glued to the back for extra penetration of the magnetic field.

Q magnets have been strategically placed in a matrix to provide the optimum circulation of equal amounts of magnetic field flow from both the north and south poles of powerful neodymium Quadrapolar rare-earth magnets.

What Doctors are saying...

I recommend the Q Blanket to my patients because it provides general support for the central nervous system. The distribution of the Q magnetic field can provide greater tolerance to unwelcome electromagnetic field exposure and to life's external stressors.

For the past 5 years, I cannot recall a single day when the first steps taken in the morning haven't registered 9/10 pain levels.

A friend of mine loaned me a Q magnetic blanket that I accepted (reluctantly) out of courtesy but was highly sceptical.

Having a background in engineering, I just couldn't see how magnets could assist my condition when the best specialists with the best intentions had made little progress.

Having nothing to lose, I placed the Q magnet blanket on the base of the bed and slept on it so that the magnets covered from my lower back to my feet. On waking the very next morning, I took my first steps and could not believe that my pain was now 1/10. I can't even remember the last time my feet had felt that good in the morning.

It's now been over one week and the morning pain in my foot has remained at around 1/10.

While it's possible that it's all in my head, the results were well worth the negligible risk.
